In Remembrance: Robert George “RG” Nelson

The passing of former IBAE member and visionary Architect RG Nelson is a painful reminder that we may only be on this earth a short time but RG has proven that we can leave a lasting legacy. Without a doubt RG was a gifted designer and his gifts to the profession extended well beyond the inspired buildings he created. RG not only served as an IBAE member for ten years he also volunteered on numerous NCARB exam and professional practice committees, served as an AIA officer, was a visiting University of Idaho professor (requiring him to commute from Coeur d'Alene to Moscow twice a week) and was a founding member of the Coeur d'Alene Citizens Council of the Arts/ Art on the Green.

Our friend and mentor passed away on Aug 2nd and is sorely missed by all who knew him. To honor RG's legacy, a scholarship fund will be established at the University of Idaho Architecture program. If you would like more information regarding the scholarship please contact Shelly Servick at: (208)755-8158 or shelly@wwomer.com.

NCARBs Welcome Back Offer

From October 1 through November 30, NCARB is offering fee relief to any architect or intern who reactivates a lapsed Record or Certificate.

For interns: NCARB will waive all past renewal fees for interns who reactivate a lapsed Record. The cost to reactivate is just $75, and going forward, if your Record remains active through licensure, they will get NCARB certified for FREE and will get half-price renewals of their Certificate for three years.

For architects: NCARB will waive all past renewal fees for architects who reactivate a lapsed Record or Certificate. Depending on how long the Record/Certificate has lapsed, this could equate to significant savings.

- Architects who let their Records or Certificates go inactive while an architect will have all past renewal fees waived upon reactivation. The cost to reactivate is only $475.
- Architects who let their Records go inactive while still an intern will have all past renewal fees waived upon reactivation, plus they will get certified for FREE as long as they qualify for NCARB certification. The cost to reactivate is only $475.

CE Requirement Change

Beginning January 1, 2014 all licensees will need to certify on their renewal forms that they have obtained 12 hours of Continuing Education credits in architectural health, safety, and welfare in the prior calendar year (Rule 450). The audit period will then be the previous calendar year. For example, if you submit your renewal form on 7/15/2014, your audit period will be from 1/1/2013 through 12/31/2013. If you have more than 12 hours, you may now carryover a maximum of 6 hours instead of 8 to meet the next year's continuing education requirement. Additional changes to Rule 450 and the entire set of Rules can be reviewed by going to www.ibol.idaho.gov and choosing the tab for Architectural Examiners and then clicking on State Licensure Rules. If you have questions, please contact Maria Brown at the Bureau of Occupational Licenses at (208) 577-2581 or at arc@ibol.idaho.gov.

Notice to Complainants

One of the missions of the Boards and Commission (“Boards”) that have contracted with the Idaho Bureau of Occupational Licenses (“Bureau”) is to take action to protect the public with respect to licensed/registered individuals. The Boards are legally authorized to take disciplinary action against an individual only when the individual has violated the statutes and rules governing the individual’s profession. We rely completely on the complaint process to identify those who have acted improperly and registrants are obligated by law to report known violations. You may mail, fax or email your complaint to the Board:
