Public Works, HVAC, Plumbing, Construction Manager and Electrical contractors are required to be licensed with the Division of Building Safety and need only register with the Idaho State Contractors Board if doing work outside of that license.

 Pursuant to the Idaho Contractor Registration Act all individuals and entities registered with the Idaho Contractors Board are registered as “contractors. A contractor’s self-characterization as a “general contractor type” or “subcontractor type” does not mean it is a general contractor or subcontractor for purposes of the Residential Real Property Lien Disclosure Law (Idaho Code § 45-525). That determination depends on the nature of the individual contract between the contractor and the homeowner, prospective real property purchaser or another contractor. A contractor may be a subcontractor in some instances and at the same time a general contractor in others. See the following example:

Example: John the concrete contractor is contacted by Phil the homeowner who requests John to provide a quote to construct a concrete sidewalk and patio for Phil’s house. John quotes Phil a price of $3,000 and Phil accepts the quote. John and Phil enter into a contract for John’s concrete crew to construct a concrete sidewalk and patio for Phil’s house for $3,000. On the same day John is also approached by Chuck the contractor who has a contract to build a house for Ned the prospective residential real property purchaser. Chuck asks John to provide a quote to construct concrete footings, foundation, sidewalks and driveway pursuant to the plan for a house Chuck has a contract to build for Ned. John quotes Chuck a price of $25,000 and Chuck accepts the quote. John and Chuck enter into a contract for John’s concrete crew to construct concrete footings, foundation, sidewalks and driveway for Ned’s house pursuant to the plan and schedule Chuck provides to John.

In this example as to the contract for a sidewalk and patio for Phil’s house, John is a “general contractor” for purposes of the Residential Real Property Lien Disclosure Law and must provide disclosures to Phil the homeowner pursuant to its requirements. As to the contract for footings, foundation, sidewalks and driveway for Ned’s house, John does not have a disclosure obligation because he is a subcontractor whose contract is with Chuck, the general contractor. Chuck’s contract is with Ned the prospective real property purchaser and Chuck must provide disclosures to Ned as required by the Residential Real Property Lien Disclosure Law, including the requirement to disclose the business name, address and telephone number of John as a subcontractor.
